

ABSTRACT

A method of making an electrically programmable memory element, comprising: providing a first dielectric layer; forming 5 a conductive material over the first dielectric layer; forming a second dielectric layer over the conductive material; and forming a programmable resistance material in electrical contact with a peripheral surface of the conductive material.